

M.A.

IN CINEMA STUDIES

at the UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

NOW ACCEPTING
APPLICATIONS

The Cinema Studies Institute at Innis College, University of Toronto, offers a freestanding, one year, funded Masters in Cinema Studies. Building on thirty years of exceptional undergraduate instruction in Cinema Studies, the M.A. program is housed in one of the top research universities in North America. The Masters in Cinema Studies also offers its graduate students the advantages of studying film in a city renowned for its film culture.

The MA Program in Cinema Studies ties cinema's past and present to its future within an ever-widening range of moving image forms. The program builds on the research and teaching strengths of our faculty: History, Theory and Culture. Our faculty's interests cover a wide range of topics: animation; Asian, diasporic, European, and North American cinemas; the cinematic institution; counter-cinematic traditions; documentary; early cinema; experimental and avant-garde cinema; feminist film theory; film genres; media and social practice; narrative theory; women filmmakers.

The tripartite emphasis of the core curriculum encourages students to relate the current media environment to previous pivotal moments in the history of the cinematic institution, and to central questions of form, materiality, social and cultural practice, and the production of meaning.

Annual deadline for applications: February 1st

To learn more about the program, contact

Graduate Assistant, Cinema Studies
2 Sussex Avenue, Innis College,
University of Toronto, Toronto, ON M5S 1J5
gradcinema.studies@utoronto.ca

Information and online application:

www.utoronto.ca/cinema