

The Cinema Studies Institute & The Cinema Studies Student Union present a free screening and discussion of

Children of Men

with Oscar-nominated screenwriter
Timothy J. Sexton

Mr. Sexton is a special guest of the Universal Screenwriter-in-Residence Program at Innis College. In 2002, he won the 2002 Paul Selvin Award from the Writers Guild of America for his film "For Love or Country: The Arturo Sandoval Story". He also earned an Emmy Award nomination for his work on "Live From Baghdad".

In addition to his work for HBO, Sexton joined forces with acclaimed filmmaker Alfonso Cuarón on "Children of Men", a futuristic dystopian tale that earned him an Academy Award nomination for Best Adapted Screenplay.

A short film (to be announced) will precede the main feature. After the film, Mr. Sexton will participate in a panel discussion about "Children of Men".

Friday, Mar 20, 7:00 p.m.
